The University—Light at Last.
The INTELLIGENCER has done what it could to call public attention to the steady decline of the West Virginia University; and has been pointed out and remedied. The Democratic press, which, from its relation to the ruling party, might have rendered valuable assistance, has for the most part preferred to see in these criticisms a savage assault on a well-managed institution for no higher purpose than to make capital for the Republican party. Democratic newspapers have gone so far as to say that the University was prosperous in spite of these "malignant assaults," and the INTELLIGENCER has been highly complimented on the signal service it was unwittingly rendering to the Democratic party.

Three things are referred to at this time to give emphasis to a notable change of view on the part of our neighbor the Register, which, until now, has stood up for the University management against "the vile assaults of the Radical press." It is highly creditable to any newspaper to change its opinions and its course upon sufficient information, and the INTELLIGENCER welcomes the co-operation of the most influential Democratic newspaper in the State. What follows is from the editorial columns of the Register of Monday:

"The best and surest test of any system is found in the results of its experiment. Taking the results as a whole, it must be said that there is nothing in the history of the West Virginia University from its inception down to the present date that encourages the belief that the system of management is a success. The State returns have been very poor. Whether the fault is in the location of the University, whether in the policy pursued by the State for its government, or whether in the inefficiency of its administration it is not necessary to stop in this discussion to inquire. That its status is unsatisfactory is plain to everyone."

The question is how to elevate it to a plane of more general utility. One among other suggestions is that thrown out by the Register of submitting the University to a referendum with the people. To the faculty and regents, who seem to model everything after the Charlottesville school, this proposition may seem absurd and only a sentiment. But to the taxpayers of the State, who desire to see some return for the money they annually invest in the University, and to the four thousand school teachers in the State, and to the hundreds of thousands of people who feel an interest in the cause of education, the proposition is a very practical one, and one that they at least, are willing to discuss and see what it is in."

"Those who have control of the destinies of the school, may as well understand first as last that the people are tired of controversy in this university business. Every consideration demands that the school be established and kept on a popular and respectable basis, or discontinued altogether. It is true that it is, to a certain extent, the victim of political venom. The opposition partisan press deal with it harshly and cruelly. But what the Democratic party wants to have the university in such condition that the opposition will have no foundation for its assaults."

We think the single argument of the property and commendable government of the Fairmont Normal School is of itself sufficient to convince the most skeptical that education of the sexes will not be an injury, but a positive benefit to the university. When the Morgantown school has established for itself a good reputation in the States as a Fairmont school, it can then be in position to discuss the relative merits of the two systems."

It will be observed that this admits everything that the INTELLIGENCER has charged, even to the pointed accusation that the management has sought "to model everything after the Charlottesville school"—that is to say, to Boarboonize the University of West Virginia.

The INTELLIGENCER is not yet ready to favor co-education at the University. First let us have education according to some rational plan suited to this environment; let us wait until it can no longer be said that the "status is unsatisfactory," that there is "molestation in this University business," that the school is not "on a popular and respectable basis," that there is "foundation for assault;" that the State University has not "a good reputation in the State" as the Fairmont Normal School has. It will be necessary for the management to show that it is able to govern boys, before parents will be willing to send their girls to breathe the same atmosphere.

It will also be necessary to improve the moral tone of the faculty, which already contains much good material. Under favorable circumstances the State University ought to be open to young women, but the present conditions are not favorable to that departure.

WEST VIRGINIA UNIVERSITY.
Why the Southern Rags and the Mowlers Howl.
To the Editor of the INTELLIGENCER.
Sir—Last week's Dominion contained an article accompanied by some epigrams concerning the University correspondents of the INTELLIGENCER. It seems to be the general opinion of the "rag" that no real crown awaits those gentlemen, but on the contrary, "a crown of thorns" is prepared for their near future.

The author of the article, "Slabbing the University in the Dark," a man who has no rival in making the worse appear the better reasoning—the acknowledged cosmopolitan crank of the nineteenth century—seems to think that there is "not a shadow of truth" in any of the late articles concerning the University. Certainly he, with his wide extended knowledge ever at his command, knows whether a man states correctly what he has seen and what he has heard. This is highly probable.

I am sorry to say that the gentleman in his wisdom is either ignorant of facts, or what is worse, is prone to misrepresent them. As one knowing where I speak, I am prepared to say that in some of the articles, instead of containing "not a shadow of truth," contain "not a shadow" of falsehood, and I have no doubt that other gentlemen can say the same thing of other articles.

The gentleman seems to think that the people of the State will come to the conclusion that "the people of Morgantown, the students of the University, the faculty, are in a state of demoralization and debauchery, unequalled and unparalleled outside the Point of New York." Now, the general subject of discussion has been that there are three or four professors of the University who are not suited for their positions, because of their immoral example, their inability to manage a school, etc.; that a few of the students are becoming dissipated, and are retained here through the influence of these professors, and as to the people of Morgantown, they first appear in the printed column in the gentleman's own article. For the gentleman, to arrive at his stated conclusion, he certainly either is ignorant of what has been said, or thinks the people of West Virginia can't understand plain English. We are in favor of giving him another trial. Let him remember the numbers of the INTELLIGENCER, and if he again arrives at the same conclusion West Virginia would be wise to maintain them at a public institution situated at Weston, rather than at Morgantown.

The gentleman accuses the correspondents of the INTELLIGENCER of desiring the citizens of Morgantown to be considered as the author of articles concerning the University. Of the many articles in the INTELLIGENCER concerning the University there has been but one signed "Citizen," while quite a number have been signed "Student." Would this go to prove the gentleman's position? We do not doubt that many of the citizens of Morgantown understand altogether. It is true that the University, but allow me to suggest that some of the students are slightly acquainted with the affairs of the institution also, and that it is among the latter that you will find most of the correspondents of the INTELLIGENCER.

"Slabbing the University in the dark." If we are not much mistaken the University has been "slabbing itself in the dark" for the last two or three years. And if we are not very much mistaken the author of the article gave the first "stab." The present trouble originates from the fact that these "stabs" are being disclosed, and the trouble that awaits in the future is that the disclosures are going to continue. If the gentleman wishes to find out those revealing the "stabs," he will find it far less trouble if the Faculty of the University will allow the correspondents to remain at the University provided they prove to that body that what they write is true. But as long as it is threatened by some of the Faculty that they will dismiss the young men without allowing them this privilege, we must prove the reality of the statements of the "stabs" will remain in the "dark," but those slabbing will find themselves occasionally thunder struck by a ray of sunlight which they so much fear.

University Notes.
Correspondents of the INTELLIGENCER.
MORGANTOWN, W. VA., May 19.—The cadet corps has been invited to attend the Decoration exercises at Uniontown, Pa., where extensive preparations are being made for the observance of that day. The corps has accepted the invitation and will march overland on the 29th.

Messrs. W. B. Carper, B. C. Wilson, T. M. Wilson, W. J. White, A. J. Jennings and Frank T. Lee have been selected to contest for the prize in declamation during commencement week. A prize of twenty-five dollars has been offered for the best essay written by the members of the Young Men's Christian Association. The Young Men's Christian Association, the exception of Mr. Burdette has not been announced yet. There will be no music for the occasion except such as will be furnished by local talent.

We feel constrained to again call the attention of the Faculty and also the Major to the question of drunkenness. Some of the Bourbon members of the Faculty have been expounding the cause of the hard cases, claiming that there was no positive evidence against them. Had any of the aforesaid Bourbons been on the street on Saturday they might have seen a number of the "moral" (i.e.) young men who were under the influence of the "oil can." Will the Faculty move now? Will Major Lee, who has been reported inflexible in his rule of discipline, take the cadets in hand? He certainly cannot be ignorant of this when he drilled some of these gentlemen while in this condition. If he fails to act he will place himself in a bad light as the man who discharged one cadet for certain little acts of insubordination and now fails to discharge others for notorious drunkenness.
